THURSDAY, JANUARY 10, 1895.

THE NEBRASKA SENATORSHIP

What is conceded to be the most interesting contest of the year for United States Senator is now being waged in Nebraska. The principal candidates are Edward Rosewater, editor of the Omaha Bee, and John M. Thurston, attorney of the Union Pacific Railroad Company. Rosewater is an independent Republican who has been fighting the machine Republicans and the corporations, and Thurston represents the machine element of the Republican party. Rosewater is credited with having broken up the powerful Republicans so long prouder the people of Nebraska, and gave the control of every department of the State government to the railroad corporations.

Last November the Republican machine was broken by the election of the Populist candidate for Governor. The Legislature, however, is Republican by a majority of thirty-six on joint ballot and it depends upon the number of independent Republicans in that body, whether the independent or the corporation candidate will be elected United States Senator. Congressman Bryan is the choice of the Populists and Democrats for United States Senator, but as they are in a minority they will probably join the independent Republicans in supporting Rosewater. The contest promises to be long and bitter as the feeling between the anti-peoplent and the machine Republicans is intense and Rosewater's friends will not support the railroad candidate upon any consideration.

ALASKA.

Alaska, though a part of the United States, is as far as territory is concerned, a very large part too, is directly under the control of the general Government. It has not been organized as a Territory and it has no Legislature. The President appoints a Governor, a Judge who has jurisdiction in certain cases, and a Marshal. The Governor in his annual report does not favor a Territorial form of Government. He says elections cannot be held with any regularity. The districts in which there are white people are so remote from each other that a year would probably pass before some of the returns would be received at the seat of Government. Besides the miners would have to bear the increased taxation that would result from a Territorial Government, and they prefer to have the country remain as it is, immediately under the control of the United States Government.

A FAVORABLE SHOWING.

The report of business failures in 1894 as compared with 1893 is favorable and indicates a turn in the tide of depression which has prevailed since 1892. Bradstreet's says the failures in 1894 were 12,721, against 15,630 in 1893, a decrease of 18 per cent. The liabilities represented by the failures in 1894 were $140,595,424 and the assets $79,755,067, a decrease of 63 and 70 per cent respectively as compared with 1893.

The comparisons as made by Bradstreet's between 1893 and 1894 are based on facts and are very encouraging, as they show that the country is gradually recovering from the business depression which resulted so disastrously to all the industries in which the people are engaged.

THE CURRENCY BILL SIDETRACKED.

The Currency bill has been temporarily, if not permanently, shelved in the House of Representatives. A special order from the Committee on Rules to substitute the Springer bill for the original bill and to take a final vote on the bill Saturday was rejected by a vote of 120 to 122 years. An attempt may be made to get the bill before the House again, but there is no probability of the bill being passed at this session of Congress.

The Currency bill is supposed to be a device of the Administration to attract attention from the silver question at the present session of Congress and every friend of free coinage will be glad that it is sidetracked.

The Populists and Democrats combined in the Colorado Legislature and controlled the organization of the Senate. They are adopting the tactics of the goldbug Democrats and Republicans in Congress, who combine whenever the occasion requires unity of action to defeat a free coinage measure. If the people would follow their example at the polls they could overcome the minnows of Wall street.

PRESIDENT ADAMS of the Ohio Miners Union has published an exposure of the manner in which the miners strike of last summer was settled. He says he was offered money and promised that he would be handsomely cared for by the operators if he would sign the 60 cent scale. He intimates very strongly that McBride sold out to the operators.

CENSUS returns from the Indian Territory show that out of its population of 178,007 only 23,055 are Indians. These belong to the five civilized tribes, Cherokees, Chickasaw, Choctaw, Creek and Seminoles. There 100,398 whites, and out of the total population 82,724 are women and girls.

SINCE December 5th the banks have drawn out of the Treasury about $25,000,000 for the new bonds. Should this drain continue another month another bond issue will be in order.

THE CALIFORNIA GOVERNORSHIP.

THE FUNERAL YESTERDAY.

The Assembly Adopted a Concurrent Resolution to Canvass the Returns. SACRAMENTO, January 9.—The first business in the Assembly this morning was to receive Governor Markham's last message, which was presented by the Governor's Secretary at 11 o'clock.

The reading of the message was dispensed with and one thousand copies were ordered printed for the use of members. Thomas presented a concurrent resolution providing for the meeting of the Senate and Assembly at 2 p. m. to-morrow for the purpose of canvassing and publishing the returns of the election for Governor and Lieutenant-Governor. Adopted without a dissenting vote.

Immediately afterward Bruiser of Sacramento presented a concurrent resolution which probably settled the Gubernatorial contention for all time. The resolution provides for the appointment of a joint committee of three members from each House to confer with the Governor-elect and the Lieutenant-Governor-elect for the purpose of perfecting arrangements for their inauguration. The resolution was adopted by a unanimous vote.

Senator Perkins arrived here this afternoon and has established headquarters at the Golden Eagle Hotel. The Gubernatorial contention having been practically settled, the Senatorial contest will now begin in earnest.

METHOD IN HIS MADNESS.

An Insane Murderer Escapes from the Stockton Asylum.

Stockton, January 9.—Antone Viel, the condemned murderer, who was a short time ago transferred from the San Quentin State Prison while in sentence of death to the State Insane Asylum in this city, escaped from the latter institution some time last night and is still at large. The prisoner was watched with special vigilance in the Asylum and has been kept in irons ever since his commitment. He was confined to a room in the top story of the building. Handcuffed as he was by the shackles on his hands, he managed to remove the casing from the window, taking out the sash weights used, then to break out enough of the iron bars to admit of his body passing through. He evidently covered the weights with the bed clothing of his room so as to deaden the sound. He then took the cords that travel the pulleys and making a rope of his bed clothes escaped.

THE WEBER MURDERERS.

They Escape Through Carelessness of Prison Officials.

SACRAMENTO, January 9.—The Bee has a startling story in connection with the Weber murderer. It says that when Weber and his wife were murdered on December 29 the murderers left their bloody clothing in a back yard, donning suits from Weber's wardrobe, taking the train for San Francisco early the next morning. New Year's evening tea drunks were placed in one cell and discharged the next day. Late a trusty found under a toilet seat a lady's gold watch, which Captain Lee has identified as the property of the murdered woman. Weber's son confirmed the identification. If the prisoners had been searched when locked up the Weber murderers would now be in jail.

THE CURRENCY BILL KILLED.

A Special Rule to Bring it Before the House Rejected.

WASHINGTON, January 9.—The special rule to bring the Currency bill to a vote was defeated on the yeas and nays by 122 years to 129 nays. This was a decisive test vote and practically kills the bill.

CALIFORNIA LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR.

LOS ANGELES, January 9.—Lieutenant Governor Millard's condition is better this morning than at any time since he was taken seriously ill. A precautionary oath of office taken Monday night was intended to be secret, but leaked out. The official oath will not be taken till after the legislative canvass. His physicians reaffirm their intention of taking him to India as soon as possible.

POWDER MILL BLOWN UP.

AUBURN, January 9.—The Corning Mill Clipper Gap Powder Works, seven miles from here, blew up at 11:20 this morning. One man, a stranger and an Eastern man, was killed. No one else was hurt. No cause is given for the accident.

A NEW YEARS INCIDENT.

A Steam Whistle's Welcome to '95 Turned Into a Cry of Distress.

A letter from Amador, Cal., tells of a severe blow that camp received New Years morning. The whistle on the Key-stone forty-stamp mill had just blown '94 out and '95 in when the residents of Amador were startled by it shrieking the fire alarm. Every one was out in a few moments only to be horrified with the sight of flames bursting from every part of the roof of the big mill. The fire had gained such headway before it was discovered that nothing could be done except save the adjoining buildings. It was only a short time until the mill, one of the finest in the country, was a mass of ruins. It was not a happy New Years morn for the people of Amador, for nearly everyone depends on the mine and mill for support. It is said that they just stood and looked at each other and wondered what would come next, but later in the day they were made glad by the announcement that the force would be put to work rebuilding the mill and not a man would be discharged. It is expected to have everything in running order in about two months.

THE FUNERAL YESTERDAY.

Young Menard Laid at Rest. The remains of Eli J. Menard, who was accidentally shot at Verdi Sunday afternoon, arrived on yesterday morning's train accompanied by a large number of friends of the family. Upon the arrival of the train the body was removed to Hoskin's undertaking parlors from which the funeral took place at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon. The remains were buried in the Catholic cemetery. The funeral was largely attended, many from Reno joining the sad procession. The poor father and mother were heart-broken and they have the sympathy of everyone in these bitter hours. Friends are doing all that is possible to brighten the awful darkness that has entered the little home at Verdi, but so far their efforts have to a great extent been in vain.

The father's grief is something terrible and it is feared that the loss of her boy may kill the poor mother, as she has been in ill health and now nearly prostrated. The accident was one of those strange events that now and then occur, and when all the circumstances are taken into consideration connected with this tragic event, one cannot help but believe that it was to be.

MONEY MAKES MONEY.

A Quick Way to Become Rich. An exchange, which possibly speaks from experience says:

Money makes money. "No one is so poor that he cannot take up a penny to start on. Now upon the first day of the month deposit a cent in the bank and on each of the succeeding 30 days of the month double your deposit. Follow this program faithfully, and at the end of the month you will be surprised to find that your account will show the sum of $5,368,709 12 to your credit.

With that little sum all you have to do is to retire and let the other fellows hustle."

The Contest.

Nothing new developed in the contest of John H. Dennis vs. Wm. H. Coughlin in the District Court yesterday. The voter of the precincts of Verdi and Pyramid were again counted simply to verify the result obtained the day before. General Clarke not being here the argument was postponed until his arrival on the evening train, when he opened the argument on the part of the contestants. After General Clarke's argument the Court adjourned until this morning when Judge Thomas E. Haydon will address the Court, followed by Hon. S. Summerfield for contestants.

There are still many phases presented of the contest on the streets, but in most cases they are not based on facts or law, but are simply rumors. Doubtless when the case is fully presented, and the question decided, many of the theories about it will not hold good.

A NEW YEARS INCIDENT.

A Steam Whistle's Welcome to '95 Turned Into a Cry of Distress.

A letter from Amador, Cal., tells of a severe blow that camp received New Years morning. The whistle on the Key-stone forty-stamp mill had just blown '94 out and '95 in when the residents of Amador were startled by it shrieking the fire alarm. Every one was out in a few moments only to be horrified with the sight of flames bursting from every part of the roof of the big mill. The fire had gained such headway before it was discovered that nothing could be done except save the adjoining buildings. It was only a short time until the mill, one of the finest in the country, was a mass of ruins. It was not a happy New Years morn for the people of Amador, for nearly everyone depends on the mine and mill for support. It is said that they just stood and looked at each other and wondered what would come next, but later in the day they were made glad by the announcement that the force would be put to work rebuilding the mill and not a man would be discharged. It is expected to have everything in running order in about two months.

A GENTLE WOMAN.

Young Menard Laid at Rest. The remains of Eli J. Menard, who was accidentally shot at Verdi Sunday afternoon, arrived on yesterday morning's train accompanied by a large number of friends of the family. Upon the arrival of the train the body was removed to Hoskin's undertaking parlors from which the funeral took place at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon. The remains were buried in the Catholic cemetery. The funeral was largely attended, many from Reno joining the sad procession. The poor father and mother were heart-broken and they have the sympathy of everyone in these bitter hours. Friends are doing all that is possible to brighten the awful darkness that has entered the little home at Verdi, but so far their efforts have to a great extent been in vain.

MR. EDITOR:—At your kind request I am most willing to write a few items about

THE TOWN OF NACOSARI,

State of Sonora, Mexico, which I left on the morning of December 20, 1894. Though late in the season, the morning was not at all cold. As a wrap I wore a light summer blouse jacket and when I turned to wave good by to Papa Clarke, I remarked to my husband who accompanied me as far as Benson, "see those beautiful ripe tomatoes still hanging on green vines untouched by frost." No doubt there were ripe tomatoes to be picked for Christmas dinner. The climate throughout the year is said to be delightful except, perhaps, a few light falls of snow in January, followed by slight frosts. We all like Mexico very much and as our town improves we will like it better. The town is simply what the mines and their owners have made it and will make it. Up to the time of our going there very little was done with the copper mines. Attention was directed almost wholly to the silver mines, the ores of which were concentrated and shipped.

COPPER MINING AND SMELTING.

The company assumed the name of Montezuma Concentrating Company, which they still retain. In the meantime the copper mines were somewhat developed and a few tests were made in a very small smelter. The ore was found to contain a great deal of sulphur, so last May on Mr. Clarke's arrival a brick furnace was built to roast the ore and thus free it of its sulphur.

The ore goes through four processes before it becomes pig copper. First it is concentrated, then it is fed into the furnace which I have just mentioned, after which it is mixed with a certain percentage of clay, lime and iron, and then wet with water, allowed to remain in this condition for twenty-four hours, as in this state the necessary chemical changes take place and then it is run through a brick machine and made into bricks, as the fine ore will not melt but settle and causes the whole mass to "freeze" in the smelter. But in the form of bricks the charges can be easily made up and the smelting process go on smoothly. The number of bricks made per hour vary from 1,000 to 1,500. I have seen one hundred tons of pig copper turned out of the smelter in four and one half days. A mould of pig copper to every part of slag, with a very thin rim of matter on the copper bars. At times the bars are entirely free from matter and they always run 98 and 99 per cent pig copper. Coke, which is used for smelting, is very costly, so means are being devised for the burning of charcoal, for which there is splendid wood, such as mesquit and black oak. I have samples of ore with me which assay 80 per cent copper, but this is above the average, though it is all rich and there is plenty of it. In one of the mines, The Pilares, a tunnel has been run in 500 feet and a cross cut made of over 100 feet when I left and there was ore all the way both ways. Another mine called the Belle Union is also being developed to a large extent and its ore, though very rich in copper, also contains a good deal of gold. There is still another large mine, La Fortuna, but at present this mine will not cut much of a figure as it contains zinc, which makes it difficult to convert into pig iron without reverberatory furnaces or converters which they expect to put in later on.

The first great improvement will be a railroad to the mines, the building of which is going on by this time. The nearest mine is four miles from the works, and transportation is expensive as the ore has to be handled so often. It is packed on the backs of small mules, called burros, from the mines to the road, then loaded into wagons and brought into the works by great ox teams. It is a great wood country. Wood can also be brought in by rail. A brick kiln was burning when I left, in order to procure bricks for the purpose of building two or three more furnaces. A great many adobes were being made by Mexicans for house building. A new store, office and other buildings were being designed to be built this spring. Another mill will also be necessary, it of course will be made of lumber.

ANCIENT RUINS.

An old church that has crumbled away has been a source for obtaining dirt for new adobes. Many relics of ancient times have been buried in these ruins and people who were buried under this church are now ashes which mix with the earth, and it recalled to me this couplet:

Imperial Caesar dead and turned to clay, might stop a hole to keep the wind away."

Although no imperial Caesar lay there, the skeleton form of a giant was found still preserved. He had been buried in sitting posture and was reburied. Rock foundations of houses can be seen scattered about and old slag dumps are buried beneath the sand. In the mines the men come to per box. For sale by S. J. Hodgkinson.

STORY OF A WEDDING.

And a Present That Turned Out to Be a White Elephant.

I know a man named Jack Barnes, who was married on Thanksgiving day, writes Howard Fielding in the Boston Herald. His wife had quite a number of rich relations. One of them was in the furniture business. His present was undoubtedly the handsomest of all. It was a mahogany bedstead big enough for a Mormon elder and carved in the highest style of the art. The happy couple were enraptured when they saw it. The exhibition occurred in the store of the furniture man, for of course such a thing couldn't be sent to the bride's father's house like a sugar spoon in a box. An expressman who subsequently moved the bedstead told me that it weighed nine tons, but I think he exaggerated. Moreover, it was certainly as massive a piece of furniture as ever I saw. On this account perhaps the generous donor had been unable to sell it; and had had it lumbering up his saleroom until he had grown sick of the sight of it.

The bridegroom gave directions for its removal to the Harlem flat. He then thanked his wife's uncle for this magnificent gift with tears in his eyes. When Mr. and Mrs. Barnes returned from their wedding journey, they found the mahogany bed already established in their flat. They knew it was there, because they were unable to open the parlor door. The bed was inside, and there was an alley a foot wide all the way around it between it and the wall. This may seem improbable to a person who does not know much about New York flats of the $40 a month grade, but the sophisticated will only wonder that the bet got in there at all. I am told that the man who set it up had to climb out of a window afterward, but I think this is an exaggeration, because the tall, curved bedboard entirely covered the two windows and thus cast a gloom over the otherwise happy home. They found the furniture which had previously been in the parlor divided between two bedrooms and completely filling them.

Housekeeping under these circumstances was not what this young woman had been led to expect. In 24 hours she had demanded larger flat. Mr. Barnes had demanded larger flat. Mr. Barnes went flat hunting. The adventures of the Wandering Jew are a mere stroll compared to those of the flat hunter in New York. Jack was looking for a bed room big enough to hold the mahogany bedstead. He tells me that this piece of furniture was so big that he could hardly carry a memorandum of its dimensions in his largest overcoat pocket.

Reasonable Request.

Mrs. Williams always asserted that whenever her husband proffered a reasonable request she complied with it as promptly as possible. When asked on one occasion what she meant by this reservation, she said, with a laugh:

"Well, once in awhile Mr. Williams makes what I call an unreasonable request. For instance, he came home a few days ago and said he had seen a woman on the street whose dress he admired, and he wished I would have made just like it."

"Tell me how it was made, and I certainly will," I answered.

"Oh, it is very simple," he began. "The color was—well, it was one of those mixed goods, you know—brown. I should say, or a sort of yellowish gray, with a figure of some sort, or perhaps a small stripe, or it might have been a check. It was made with a skirt—just one skirt I think—and it had a ruffling or a band or a—something to brighten it a little here and there, more toward the bottom. I should say that the top, though I think there was a little ornamentation of some sort around the top too."

"And the waist or jacket, or whatever you choose to call it, that was perfectly plain, I think, except that there were a few frills about it and a contrivance of some sort about the neck—nothing elaborate at all, but just what would look neat and appropriate. I wonder if you catch my drift?" he inquired as he finished this hasty description.

"Now, that was one of Mr. Williams' requests which I found it really impossible to grant,"—Yester's Companion.
